

The writer observes elephants and highlights their long trunks as the most notable characteristic, with no further